This site uses a small number of cookies. Essential cookies are always on. Optional analytics and advertising cookies are off until you turn them on through the consent banner.

What this page tells you

This page describes the cookies we set as at the date below. If we ever add analytics, advertising, or other optional cookies, we will update the consent banner and this page before they are set, and we will ask for your consent first where the law requires it. The consent banner is always the definitive current list — if it ever differs from this page, the banner controls until we update this page.

Strictly necessary

- Session cookies — keep you signed in to the customer portal or staff workspace. Without them the site cannot tell who is logged in. These do not require consent.
- CSRF token cookies — protect form submissions from cross-site request forgery.
- ccfs_cookie_consent — stores your cookie-category choices (which optional cookies you have enabled or disabled) so the consent banner does not reappear on every visit. Set only after you interact with the banner. Retained for 12 months.

Optional — analytics and advertising

These are off by default and set only if you turn them on through the consent banner. We use Google Consent Mode: until you opt in, these services are held in a denied state and do not set their cookies.

- Analytics — if you allow analytics, Google Analytics 4 (a Google service) sets cookies so we can see how the site is used and improve it.
- Advertising — if you allow marketing, Google Ads (a Google service) sets cookies so we can measure and, where relevant, tailor our advertising.

These are third-party cookies set by Google when, and only when, you consent. You can withdraw consent at any time by reopening the banner; your choices are recorded in the `ccfs_cookie_consent` cookie above.

Cookies we do not set

We do not set social-network share-button cookies, and we do not set analytics or advertising cookies at all unless you have opted in. We do not sell cookie data or use it to track you across unrelated websites.

How to remove cookies

Your browser settings can clear cookies. Signing out from the customer portal also clears the session cookie.

If you block or delete the strictly necessary cookies listed above, you will not be able to sign in to the customer portal or staff workspace, and features that depend on session state will not work. This is a consequence of your browser settings, not a fault in the service, and we are not responsible for any inability to access your account that results from you blocking or clearing these cookies.

Status of this policy

This Cookie Policy is information, not a contract. It does not form part of, and does not vary, any credit agreement, facility letter, or the Website Terms of Use, which governs use of this site including the limitation of liability set out there.

Legal basis and questions

The strictly necessary cookies above are exempt from consent under the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations because they are essential to provide the service you asked for. Any optional cookie is set only after you give consent through the banner, and you can withdraw that consent at any time by returning to the banner. For how we use any personal data collected via cookies, see our Privacy Notice. Questions or concerns about cookies can be raised through our internal complaints process; see the Complaints Procedure for how to reach us and how escalation works.
